

Bail Supervision

Brian was placed on Bail Supervision in November 2006 for 15 weeks prior to trial. The reason for the referral was an offence in relation to Breach of the Peace. Following an initial assessment it was established that Brian had left school with no qualifications and had never been in employment since leaving school. After a few weeks of working with the Sacro staff Brian highlighted his interest in looking at what employment and training options were available to him. At which stage he was referred to one of the local agencies within Lanarkshire.

This resulted in Brian being offered full-time employment. Due to this change in circumstances and in order for Brian to undertake this opportunity staff changed his appointment times to allow him to work on a full-time basis and continue attending his scheduled appointments with Sacro bail workers. For Brian, this not only gave him the opportunity to work for first time, but also to undertake ongoing training and by doing so allowed him to achieve his welding certificate.

Brian's bail supervision ceased following trial in March 2007, when he was admonished.
