

Sacro's Young People Inclusion Project works with young people between the ages of 16 to 25.

The service offers non-judgemental, one-to-one support to young people in relation to areas identified and agreed by them.

Young people can make a self-referral to the project. Referrals are also accepted from agencies and services with the consent of the young person.

The service can help with:

- support in attending appointments with other agencies and services;
- support and advocacy for young people when dealing with other agencies and applying for services;
- attending court and leaving custody;
- identification and participation in activities, pastimes or hobbies;
- access to support services in their local area;
- accessing support to enhance life and social skills, e.g. financial budgeting, housekeeping, cooking;
- completing paperwork and making phone calls;
- reintegration into the community;
- access to education or training;
- identifying employment opportunities.

The YPIP outreach and support workers are happy to work with any young person that may benefit from a level of support and guidance in identified areas of their lives.

Referral Criteria

Sacro's Dumfries and Annan Young People Inclusion Project (YPIP) will accept referrals and consider providing a support and inclusion service to any young person aged 16 to 25 who is resident in the towns of Dumfries and Annan at the time of referral.

YPIP encourages referrals from other services, agencies and community groups as well as from the young people and their families directly. All referrals should be agreed with and have the consent of the young person.

Referrals can be made to YPIP by completing a referral form. The form is available from Sacro's website at www.sacro.org.uk or by contacting us directly (details overleaf).

We are also happy to speak to potential referrers, including young people, to discuss the support available or answer any queries you may have.
